

COPC Inc. Employee Engagement Services

An Engaged Employee is a Customer Champion

Employee Engagement: The emotional commitment employees have with their organization. Emotionally engaged employees genuinely care about their work and organization.

Why Employee Engagement Matters

A highly engaged workforce underpins the performance of any successful organization by providing a better quality of service for customers and productivity gains in terms of increased discretionary effort. In contact centers and business process outsourcing (BPO) organizations, where the staff accounts for approximately 70%-80% of total costs, it makes tremendous financial sense to keep employees engaged and retain them.

Common Pitfalls of Employee Engagement Surveys

Surveys are one of the most common and effective tools used for measuring employee engagement. However, there are many pitfalls to be wary of, including irrelevant questions. To improve performance, you need to understand the relevant drivers of satisfaction for the industry or workplace you are surveying. If you don't have an excellent understanding of the contact center or BPO work environment, it's easy to ask the wrong questions, and it becomes more challenging to improve performance.

Partnering with an organization like COPC Inc. that understands your industry and knows the science behind survey creation and the statistics involved in survey analysis is essential.

FBC Asia Pacific is an organization that places Employee Satisfaction and Employee Engagement as our top priority to running a successful outsourced business. We believe in the fact that happy employees equal happy customers and, therefore, shareholder benefits. Having done all of our homework, we needed a company that looked at our employee activities from the “outside-in” and engaged COPC Inc., a leading management consulting company, to evaluate our programs and procedures. While there were many good things & solid performances, COPC Inc. quickly identified opportunity areas for us to be even better, based on their global and regional benchmarks. They also helped us develop a solid action plan to improve further, for which we are very grateful.
